공방거리 Suwon Street of Suwon Art Shops

The street is right next to Suwon Hwaseong Haenggung. Known as Suwon's replica of Seoul's Insa-dong, the Suwon Art Shops Street forms a special area for tourists and shoppers with many shops that sell traditional art works, along with various tea shops and restaurants. The shops' unique signboards entertain the eyes while wall paintings along the street also add to the unique experience and fun of visitors. The street is also attracting an increasing number of foreign tourists, becoming one of Suwon's new tourist destinations.

Imjingak is a park that was built to give consolation to homesick refugees who fled North Korea during the Korean War. About 2.5 million tourists visit Imjingak annually. Located about 7km to the south from the Military Demarcation Line (MDL) and 500m from Imjingang Station, it was constructed in 1972. At the Gyeonggi Peace Center in Imjingak, tourists can watch a video on the current status of North Korea and view the household items and pictures of the North that are on display. Mangbaedan is the spot where those whose homes were once to the north of the truce line can salute their parents and grandparents left behind in North Korea on important holidays or whenever they miss their families. A variety of DMZ and Gyeonggi-do tourism-related items are available at the Imjingak souvenir shop and the restaurant and observatory are both recommended.
